New York city pays three times more money to saloons than to churches. That accounts for the 60,000 democratic majority in that city.

The Wisconsin legislature should have produced one man at least who bad the toy pistol question.

A direct telephonic line has been put up between Cleveland and New York city, 600 miles, and messages are transmitted that distance without trouble.

. The United States treasury is at presont provided with $358,517,920, of which $173,761,694 are in gold and $132,499,590 in silver. Outstanding certificates call for $121,552,120 of this very hard cash.

Professor Holden, of the Washburn observatory at Madison, has gone to the South Pacific ocean to witness the eclipse of the sun which takes place on the 6th of May. It will be a total colipse only on a line in the South Pacific.

The officers of the signal service burean at Washington, say that the reason Wiggins prophesied a storm between the 9th and 11th of this month, is that by a reference to the records of the bureau for the last ten years, it will be seen that storms have occurred each year between those dates, somewhere in the United

The young lady who is counted the richest in the United States, is Miss Cath erine Wolfe, aged 27, beautiful, and has sixteen millions in her own right. There are probably several young men in this country who would like to marry Miss Wolfe, and become the manager of the sixteen millions.

The whirligig of time brings many an unnatural change. Only a few years ago L. W. Pond, of Worcester, Massachusetts, was worth a million dollars, and owned the car-shops in that place. Now he is working in these shops for three dollars a day. But there is honor in Mr. Pond. when his riches left him.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, democratic, cays, "If the whisky bill had been a measure to place congressmen on the free list at all bars and drinking places, the fortyseventh congress would have passed it." That may be true enough, but there is one fact not stated by the Enquirer, and in the course of time to make that, had there been more democrats in the forty-seventh congress, the whisky bill would have passed.

The short, and in many respects, the ridiculous career of ox-Senator Tabor in the senate at Washington, has led the Boston Herald, to bring to light Dean Swifts famous remark: "You can see what the Almighty thinks of money by the men he gives it to." Probably Fortune never made a bigger blunder than when it gave a man like Tabor the sum of ten millions on which to make a fool of himself.

We find in the luter Ocean an item regarding the method employed by a mannfacturer at Marseilles, Illinois, to solve the labor problem. Having a suspicion that his employes were not making altogother the best use of their money they might, he privately marked the bills to the amount of $700 paid out in wages. Within two weeks $342 of it had been deposited in the local bank by saloon-keep-

It is just as we have predicted. .The democratic leaders of the next house have given notice that they will reopen the subject of the tariff next winter. This is an excellent way to keep the business interests of the United States on the ragged edge. The democrats are bound to make fools of themselves in spite of the dear lessons of the past, but as there is no law compelling them to do differently, they will be permitted to keep on blundering.

The Evening Wisconsin doesn't take much stock in the report that one-third interest in the Madison Democrat was sold for $15,000. It says, and without being too wide of the mark: "This would put the valuation of the paper at $45,000. Now this sounds well, but it is on a par with the numerous items showing the fabulous sums actresses and singers receive. Probably $15,000 wouldn't be a very exorbitant price for the paper, build ing, ground, etc., etc.-but for a onethird interest it is ridiculous and was

Reports from the lower Mississippi say that planters are becoming alarmed in that section at the swelling waters and would take to the hills if there were any hills to be found. As there are none, however, within reasonable distance, they will probably content themselves by moving up stairs and chaining a skiff or two to their second story windows to bo used in case of emergency. We cannot call to mind one famous artist that has suffered more humiliation of late than Sara Bernhardt. It has only been two years since she had the people of America at, her feet. Her acting was simply grand. She held the attention of the public by virtue of her marvelous power, and in the whirlyind of her passion, she gave the people something more mighty in dramatic art than they had seen since the days of Ristori. But to-day with hardly forty years upon her head, Sara Bernhardt, as Mme. Damala, is one of the unfortunate victims of blasted tope: Since her marriage to Damala she has changed very much. While she has grown stouter, it is said there is a look about her, one who saw her two years ago can never forget. She has passed the border line over which she can never return. Sara Bernhardt as a power has departed, and all courage and ability to grapple with the | that there is left behind are the indellable footprints of sorrow and disappoint-

> It is said that ex-Senator Ferry proposes to travel all the way from Washington to Detroit by stage for the benefit of his health. One Washington paper says he has the appearance of being a physical as well as a political and financial wreck. It is also stated as a fact that when the unfortunate man left Washington a few days ago for his home, not a half a dozen of his old associates called at his house to bid him good byc. There was a time when Thomas W. Ferry was rich, and a power in the senate. Then his influence and his society were courted by his associates and their flattery was showered upon him. But when misfortune did a wicked thing and he lost his influence and his wealth, his friends turned their backs upon him, and poor Ferry returns to his home burdened with sorrow. The world very frequently makes a mistake. At a time when it should have sympathy and charity, it is cold and unfriendly. We trust, and there are many thousands who join in that sentiment, that Mr. Ferry will live to see better days, so that it cannot be said in the end that his enomies triumphed over

The story of ex-Governor William

Sprague, of Rhode Island, and his wife, is one of the strangest to be found in this country. Twenty-one years ago there was no young man in the United States that had honors and wealth lavished upon him as were lavished upon Mr. Sprague. He was born rich, and before he was thirty years old he had been governor of Rhode Island and a major general in the volunteer service, and before he was thirty-two he got into He had the moral courage to go to work the United States senate. While surrounded by the glory of his fame and enjoying the splendor of his wealth, he married Kate Chase, daughter of Chief Justice Case. She was then remarkably beautiful, and was counted the fairest of the fair in Washington society. It did seem then as if nothing could come up that marriage unhappy, or to dall the lustre of Sprague's popularity. But in his case popularity was an accident, fame s vapor, and his riches took wings. He drank too much wine at wine dinners, and by that indifference which begets' sloth, he neglected his property, did not dignify his seat in the senate, and it did not take him long to bring bankruptcy and dishonor to his door. The interest bill which was thought to have passed both houses of the legislature, is hanging fire in the assembly, that body refusing to concur in the proposition of the senate to altar the rate to be ten and six. The assembly holds firmly to eight and six, but the senate having more monied men in it than the assembly will probably be equally firm in holding to ten and six. These differences of opinion will likely be referred to a committee of conference. The assembly on Thursday evening by a decisive and indicative vote, indefinitely postponed the bill introduced by Mr. J. R. Hinckley, of Monroe county, establishing state game keepers. The measure received such ridicule from all sides that when a vote was taken on its third reading, it was killed by almost a unanimous Sensational Account of an Attempt on Ex-Secretary Blaine's Life.

An Alleged Endeavor to Assassinate Him in His Carriage Several Nights Ago.

The Story Denounced as Utterly False by the Gentleman Chiefly Interested.

Preparations Making to Overhaul Gen. Hazen and the Signal Service Bureau.

Rumored Declination of the Mission to Spain by Mr. Foster---The Star-Route Case.

A SENSATIONAL STORY. ---WASHINGTON, March 10.—The sensation of the day has been a column article in a local paper, which, with startling headlines and circumstantial statements, asserts that an attempt was made about ton days ago to assussinate Ex-Secretary Blaine while he was riding home from the capitol at night in a carriage, and accompanied by Congressman McKinley, of Ohio. The paper says: "Mr. Blaine was the here of an extraordinary adventure the other night, which has been kept singularly quiet. There is reason to believe an attempt was made to assassinate him as be was riding home from the capitol. Mr. Blaine and others who are acquainted with the circumstances have made a studied effort to make light of the arair, but a little round hole in the plate glass of the carriage in which the ex-premier was soated-a hole which was probably made by a bullet shot from the outside while Mr. Blaine was souted within-does not sustain the theory they have set up. They pretend to believe that the glass was broken by a stone projected from a 'devil sling,' a rubber device used by rockless boys; but the hole does not look as though it was made that way. It is too cleanly out. There is a possibility that the mishap might have been an accident, even though the glass was broken by a bullet, but men are not going about shooting at random in the streets of a city. Whoever shot the bullet that perforated Mr. Blaine's carriage window must have had a purpose more serious than the breaking of the glass, unless it should turn out to have been an accident, and that purpose could have been nothing less than auensalization. The mere fact that Mr. Blaine is disposed to treat the adventure lightly, a fact which reflects credit on him and is a a fact which reflects credit on him and is a proof of his abundant nervo, is not convincing evidence that he has taken the right view of it, and his explanation bearedy sustains the position he has assumed in regard to it."

Then follows a brief interview with an unnamed person who represents that Mr. Blains was budly frightened. This part of the story is told in this way. "It was about 10 o'clock in the evening. The shot struck the landau on the left forward window, the bullet breaking a hole clean through the glass."

"Did it frighten the ex-secretary?"

"Frighten him! Well, I should say it dld. He told the driver to hurry toward home, and on his arrival there said to him: 'Don't you leave this archfund! I get into the house.'"

"What did he do with his friend?"

"I suppose he lot him out somewhere on the May."

Mr. Biaine was called upon for the purpose of ascertaining what foundation there was for the report. Mr. Bisine said, "On Thursday evening of last week Mr. McKinley and I rode from the capitol to the Ebbitt house in the same carriage. From the Ebbitt house, where I stopped a few moments, I rode home alone. I dismissed the earriage as soon as I ascertained that none of the family was cut and to be sent for. The least day about noon I heard that one of the large $1.200 or glass in the carriage had been broken, and that fragments of glass were scattered profusely over the seat on which McKinleyland-I had been sitting. A few hours after I heard or it I inquired McKinley whether he noticed any noise or breskage during our ride, and he said not the slightest. He reminded me that the windows of both doers in the carriage were closed before we left the capitol, the air being quite share. He remembered this very distinctly, as I did, for he threw his cigar away with the remark that he would not smoke in a close carriage. Of course a pistol-ball fired into the carriage must have gone through it or have been found inside. It did not go through and no ball has been found. In my judgment, the hole was never made by a pistol-ball. It more resembles a crash from a stone hurled violently."

"Thave none," replied Mr. Jaine. "I only Mr. Blaine was called upon for the purpose

"What is your theory about it?" inquired the reportor.

'I have none," replied Mr. I laine. "I only know the window was not breiten while I was in the carriage. What occurred afterward I have no means of knowing."

Mr. Blaine further said he attached no importance or significance whatever to the broken carriage window, and regretted that any notice had been taken of it.

The story was probably started by the driver to save himself the expense of replacing the broken window.

THE SIGNAL SERVICE MUDDLE.

People attending the weather bureau were considerably excited when they learned that there was a possibility that the president would probably order a searching investigation of the aircast of the signal corps by a board of army officers. They laughed at the failure of Prof. probably order a searching tweeting and or any officers. They laughed at the failure of Prof. Wiggins' storm to make its appearance on schedule time, but here was an indication of a storm that would undoubtedly shake the weather bureau to its foundation. Inquiries were set on foct to learn what the war department was doing and Adjt. Gon. Drum returned a diplomatic answer that quieted their nerves. He said the secretary of war had not ordered a court of inquiry and he did not know that he would do so. Secretary Lincoln also said he had not ordered a dotail for a court. Both of these statements are true. It is also 'true, howover, that a list of officers to be nominated for a court of inquiry on Hazen and the signal service was proposed in Gen. Drum's office several days ago. No official order relative to this matter has been issued by the president or secretary of war, but there is reason to believe that the matter will not be delayed much longer. In fact, it is said to have been mentioned in the calinot moeting yesterday.

STAR-ROUTE TRIAL.

STAR-ROUTE TRIAL.

In the star-route trial Mr. Wilson resumed the introduction of the official record of fines and remissions from the contract office.

The examination of the inspection office papers was resumed. When the reading of the petitions had progressed several hours the court endeavored to bring it to an end, declaring the petitions filed after the orders for expedition had been made were worthless. Ingersoll replied at some length. He asserted the potitions justified the corders. They represented the will of the people—their voice.

"What people?" inquired the court.

Ingersoil (holding up a petition)—The persons who signed this petition.

The court (contemptuously)—"Oh!"

Ingersoil asserted that every signer was entitled to as much consideration as it he had been president of the United States. That was his idea of a republic.

The court replied that this thing of calling a meeting the voice of the people was doing injustice to the phrase.

The interior is, at present, of wood, and contains two stories. When remodeled, according to the very comprehensive plaus which are furnished, it will be iron-lined and four-stories high. The bronze statue of Prof. Henry, by W. W. Story, in Rome, has arrived, and the lith of April has been fixed upon for the unveiling. Professor Noah Porter will deliver the address on the occasion. The site splected is the lawn on the northwest corner of the institute. The pedestal, which is made of red Maine granite and Quincy gray grantle, has also arrived, but like the statue, is not yet unboxed.

THE EXTRADITION CASE. THE EXTRADITION CASE.

THE EXTRADITION CASE.

It is understood at the state department that further proceedings against P. J. Sheridan, charged by the British government with complicity in the Phenix park murder, have been abandoned by the British minister, under instructions from his government, on the ground that the winesses necessary to show Sheridad's complicity cannot be sent to the United States without expense and great inconvenience. It is said that in the event that proceedings had followed, the testimony upon which an extradition would have been based would have been subject to review by the state department, and it is believed that no extradition warrant would be issued except upon the plainest showing of the guilt of the accused.

THE VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN.

THE VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN.

Politics are nowhere so lively as in Virginia. The Democrate are eager to regain control of the state, while the Readjusters are equally determined to maintain their present ascendency. All the signs indicate that the campaign of this year will be as warmly contested as those of recent years have been. The Readjusters believe that the decision of the United States su preme court in the Louisiana bond case will strengthen their position by making it certain that the state debt question will not be repended. The Democrate, however, have shown no disposition to disturb it. Politics are nowhere so lively as in Virginia

ONE HAPPY MAN.

The question whether he was cutilted to receive salary for that portion of the term for which he was elected during which he held the office of judgo was decided at the freasury department in his favor. He was a state and not a federal officer, and therefore did not come within the inhibition.

This is one of the three pictures, the other two being the "Baptism of Pocahontas" and the "Embarkation of the Pilgrims," which were seriously, if not tatally, damaged by the heat of the tights used at the Garfield memorial fair. An effort is to be made to restore the canvas.

THE BANK TAXES.

The guestion as to when the tax on the capital and deposits of banks, bankers, and national banking associations will cease, under the operation of the set of March 3 to reduce internal taxation, has not yet been decided. No decision will be made on this question until a case arises. The statement that an opinion has been requested from the attorney general is incorrect.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.-A number of gentlemen interested in the formation of a tolephone company, in opposition to the Bell corporation of this city, came together at 43 South Third street. It was stated that a company with a capital of ten million dollars was being formed in New York, but that all purticulars would be withheld until the expiration of two weeks, when the promoters will be prepared to put their project before the public. So far they docline to reveal the name of the system which they have adopted, but they claim that it is superior to anything else axtant. A gentleman greatly interested in the coming concern said that the instruments which they will use are capable of taking sound several thousands of miles. "There is no confused jumble of syllables," he added, "such as characterizes other systems, and the phones will be so made that they will never need looking after. The present ones in use in Philadelphia have to be frequently visited by men to keep them in order. We intend to have an exchange system by which a subscriber will be able to talk with persons in New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, and sventually all over the country. The wires have been practically tested over four hundred miles with success, and by a laboratory tost we find that they can be used actually for thirteen thousand miles; in fact, the sound never seems to diminish. NEW YORK, March 10 .- A correspondent of The Sun, writing from Alabama, says: "The talk about the tariff in the cotton states is generally absurdly childish. There is almost universal demand for British free trade among the people, and not one in a hundred comprethe people, and not one in a numeric comprehends what he is talking about. They demand free iron, free cloth, free everything excepting free sugar, free rice, and free jute. Any product that the south is interested in should be protected; any industry that furnishes employment to northern capital and workmen, should be unprotected.

The Continent to be Swept by the Promised Hurricane Without Fail.

Gloucester Fishermen Frightened and Awaiting Events with Grave Apprehension.

A Furious Wind-Storm Prevailing in Minnesota and Trains in Iowa Delayed by the Gale.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 10.-Wiggins is more positive if possible that his prediction will be verified. The news from England that terrible damage has been done to shipping has croated great constornation here. In an interview yestorday Wiggins said that there seemed to be general misunderstanding as to the time that the great storm would begin. "This," he ad-ded, "is no fault of mine, for in my almanac of this year I say under March it will be first felt in the northern Pacific on the 9th and will strike this continent from the southoast on the afternoon of Saturday, the 10th. It will cross this continent from east to west, south of parallel forty-seven, tomorrow afternoon, and being deflected by the Rocky mountains will pass down the great Canadian lakes toward the cast on Sunday morning. A great tidal wave must already have occurred on the Bay of Bengal and a tremendous storm must now be raging over India. If the theory of the opposite tide be true, though I have always disputed it, then the tidal wave must occur on the Gulf of Mexico to-day. I am glad to know the Gloucoster fishermen were wise enough to keep on above, as they must all have perished had they been on the banks of Newfoundland yesterday morning. I suppose there is not a storm signal displayed on all the North America coast at this moment, though there will be upon us in a few hours one of tho greatest storms that has occurred in the memory of any, one now living. During the last six months I have done everything in my power to prevent lose at son by keeping the shipping in sale harbors from the 5th to the 11th of March. Whether I will deserve credit or not, I feel that I have at all events done my duty to myself and the public. The weather to-day must be mild over the western homisphere, for the pressure is all upon the opposite side of the earth, but will be transferred to us to-merrow. Romember, the storm is not to begin until the 11th in this meridan, and it will be some hours before its full force will be expected, and it will probably last several days, This is what I said in my first letter published on the subject, and I adhere to that in every particular. No respectable astronomer has risked his reputation by saying that the storm will not come, and scientific men generally throughout the world (if we except meteorologists who are interested parties) have either inderesd the storm or romained silent. I see the meterological bureau at Toronto indicates mild weather in the maritime provinces to-morrow. We shall see." over the western hemiaphere, for the pressure HALIBAX, Nova Scotia, March 10.-The day passed without any notable change in the weather, the wind blowing fresh from in the weather, the wind blowing fresh from the morthwest, and the temperature being mild. After dark, however, it shifted more to the westerly quarter, but changed back again until imidnight, when it middenly turned around to the southwest, and bigan to blow quite a breeze. The sky is overcast, and a light spilling of snow has begun. No storm signal is yet heisted at the signal station. An ocean steamer has just been sighted off Sambro light, at the entrance of the harbor, making for this port. ing for this port.

There is a genine feoling of fear of Wiggins' storm among a great many outside the city. Not a single inher man will leave for the fishing-grounds.' Each will beach his craft until the droaded period is past. This dread of the storm has been increased by the loss of friends and property in Tuesday night's storm. One vessel wont down with all hands, and another was wrecked but without loss of life. When the fierceat blast of the storm came or, all the vessels hove to but the Agnes and another. The latter was wrecked at midnight, but all hands, were saved. The Agnes has not aince been heard from. Annong the men on board were James Thomas, captain; his sen Edward and cousin Charles. Thomas and Patrick Brown. The names of the other two are not ascottained. The other vessels rode the storm safely, but spent a wild and dangerous night. The local prophet says a heavy storm is near at hand, but only of the violence usual at this season.

OWATONNA, Minn,, March 10.-Wigo'clock yestorday morning in the shape of a strong gale from the west, increasing in fury during the afternoon and evening. But little snow accompanies it. The more try has fallen 20 degrees and the skies are heavily overcast with clouds.

Milwaukee, March 10.—A brisk southernly wind and a falling barometer gave notice of the approach of a storm barly last ovening. The cautionary signal was hoisted as a warning of the imponding atmospheric disturbance. By 10 o'clock the wind had shifted to northwest, and was blowing at the rate of about twenty-five miles per hour. The signal service officers here do not anticipate a storm of unusual severity. The propeller Michigan, which was due from Grand Haven yesterday morning, had not arrived up to a late hour last night. MILWAUKEE, Morch 10.-A brisk

Council Bluffs, Iowa, March 10.—
The outer edge of Wiggins' storm reached here at dark last evening. A gale was blowing at 10:30. There is no snow yet, and the mercury is not quite down to freezing point. The wind storm is delaying trains on lowa roads.

Boston, March 10.—Unprecedented cold is reported from all parts of New Eugland this week, the thermometer in several localities having registered 40 below, and in numerous towns having registered 40 below added in the northern portions to the already large accumulations, and railroad blockades are reported in many instances. Boston has but barely escaped a sight at the zero point, and the wook has been almost unprecedented in March annals for frigidity. A higher temperature, however, set in late yesterday atternoon, and although the sky is clear there are indications of wet weather to day. There is no wind to speak of. The Wiggins scare has been really remarkable in its effects upon scafaring men, and their vessels crowd the docks instead of putting to sea. The Gloucester paper has the following: "The disturbances which are predicted to commence to day form the principal theme of conversation among the fisherman and landsmon of this city. The greater portion of the fishing fleet are lying in the harbor, the crows leaving them as fast as they arrived and nothing could induce the fishermen to make the trip which would have brought them on the fishing grounds from the 9th to the 12th.—All the wook the streets and wharves have been filled with fishermen, reminding one of the Georges flahery. The prodicted storm and tidal wave are fastened indefibly upon the minds of those fishermen. The Hull flebing fleet suffered seriously by the gale. Eighty vessels of the fleet have arrived there in a damaged condition. Twelve of them lost members of them with all hands. Similar accounts have been received from the Yarmouth fishing flee.

The steamer Lavarre, bound from Copenhagen to Leith, foundered during the gale. Thursday. There were eighty-one persons, mostly emigrants, on board, only sixteen of whom were saved.

The survivors give the following account.

mostly omigrants, on board, only sixteed of whom were saved.

The survivors give the following account of the loss of the steamer: Tuesday, when two hundred miles from Christiansand, the Navarre was struck by a heavy son. The cargo shifted, and Wednesday, the fove-hold filled. When a fishing smack approached the Navarre ten men took a boat and boarded the smack, letting the small boat addrift. The smack sailed round the sinking steamer but, having no boat, was unable to render assistance, the emigrants in the meantime clinging to the rigging, the sea washing over them. In a short time another smack arrived, and fifteen of the Navarre's men entime elinging to the rigging, the sea washing over them. In a short time another smack arrived, and fifteen of the Navarre's men endeavored to reach her in another boat, but it swamped and all were drowned. The steamer arrived only in time to rescue six persons struggling in the wates while the Navarre was foundering.

OHIO POLITICS.

Predictions as to the Party Leaders in the Unbernatorial Fight.

NEW YORK, March 10 .- A prominent politician of national fame, in an interview with "Gath," says: "The next campaign for governor in Ohio will be the hardest fought since the war. The temperance people hold the balance of power yet. Mr. Rice, of the Fremont district, is now spoken of. I would not be surprised if the Republicans nominated ex-President Hayes. He is a more cheerful and natural quantity than when he was president, not being under the shadow of that disputed election. His administration was strong with the Gormans on his own account, and with the temperance element | classes and to amend the school law by proon his wife's. He has been three times elected, and beat Thurman, Allon and Poudleton. He and beat Thurman, Allen and Poudleton. He can beat Roadly. His hardest opponent to beat would be Judge Goddes, of Mansheld. If Goddes is nominated Hayes will not have to be put up. I think he will accept. It would be an answer to his enomies, and being the first spectacle, I think, of an ex-president running for governor. We need a live event to get out the whole vote. Ben Butterworth also has many friends. Ohie must be carried, as it is the Cotober state of 1880."

The Columbus correspondent of The New The Columbus correspondent of The New York Times unkes the following predictions as to the probable action of the Ohio Demo-

as to the probable action of the Ohio Demo-crats:

"The fight among the Democrats for the first place on their state ticket this year is gradually narrowing down to a contest between the Hoadly and Geddes factions. The general im-pression among politicians and mou of affairst who know Mr. Geddes intimately is that he will outgoneral Hoadly and his supportors. Geddes is an able and untiring worker, and stands well as a lawyer and judge. He has a large and strong following among Ohio Methodiats, which can be said of no other Democrat of note in the state. His residence at Marsfield is the home and in a measure headquarters for the minis-ters of that denomination, who unhositatingly throw their influence in the scale for him, and who, with a considerable temperance element. who, with a considerable temporance element, hold him as one of themselves. At the same time he has so managed his course as to give no offense to the saloon and liquor element, between whom and Geddes there is no friction, but which element, on the contrary, gives him as unhesitating and warm a support as it would Gen. Durbin Ward, Judge Rannoy, Henry B. Payne, or any other recognized Democratic loader. That an active politician should suc-cessfully concillate two such diverse and oploader. That an active politician should successfully conciliate two such diverse and opposing classes gives ground for the confidence of his neighbors, and as John C. Thompson expresses it, "that Brother Geddes is a slick one." At the present time he has the support of each wings in the northern part of the state, He holds it without any apparent show of double dealing. If open to the charge of carrying water on one shoulder and whisky on the other, he does it in a gentlemanly and artistic way, and has ever retained a reputation for apparent uprightness and fair dealing difficult to reconcile with the sources from which he derives his political power. Judge Headly's position as chief advisor of the liquor dealers in the litigation over the Fond bill brings him into close relations with that following, in the Democratic party. They may, and no doubt will, if they have an foundatively being Mr. Goddes to an issue as to his "does on temperance, and in this way create disastisfaction among a class the Democracy cannot afford to offend, and at the same time disorganize the Mansfield statesman's church and cold water support. It is the most ready line of attack to the Headly men and one which will soon support. It is the most ready line of attack for the Hoadly men, and one which will soon develop itself."

The Standard Oil Monuncly. NEW YORK, March 10 .- The Standard Oil capitalists, who some time ago bought the Fulton Municipal Gas company and the Prospect Gas company, of Brooklyn, and compollod the Citizons' Gas company to shut down its works and buy gas for its district at wholesale from the Fulton Municipal company, have now, it is alloged, purchased the control of the Williamsburg Gas company. This company has been the objective point of the capitrlists for some time. It is expected that the works of the Williamsburg Gas company will be so altered as to admit of the mixture in them of naphtha water gas, which is being furnished in South Brooklyn. The Standard Oil company controls the naphtha trade, and the profit on gas manufactured from that material is vory large. It is thought to be only a question of time before all the gas companies of the city will be paying tribute to the great oil monopolists. The Brooklyn Gas company, it is believed, will be gobbled up next. Notwithstanding the lower cost of manufacture of the gas, the price has not lowered. have now, it is alleged, purchased the control

Jay Gould's Opinion.

NEW YORK, March 10 .- Jay Gould and family started last evening for Florida. He will be absent not longer than two weeks. Mr. will be absent not longer than two weeks. Mr. Gould said yesterday that the trip he was about to take was purely for recreation; that there was no occasion for his presence at the meetings of the Southwestern railroads that are to be held in St. Louis next week, and that he went away confident that a higher range of prices would prevail in the stock market before he returned. He expressed the opinion that she prosent rates for money would attract funds from abroad.

Panie in the Petroleum Market. PITTSBURG. March 10 .- Not since the ver-to-be-remembered panio last fall, when the price of oil dropped from $1.85 to 80 cents in a few days, have the bulls and bears had such a hair-raising, soul-stirring time as yestorday. The market was up one minute and down the next, and all the while the greatest excitement provailed.
The first cale was made at 87 onts, and then the fear that the bottom had dropped completely out of the market became so wildspread that weak holders began dumping their cil. At the same time, to add to the paric, large blocks of unmargined oil were thrown out. The prices dropped to 50 cents, and gave promise of going down still further, when the decline was checked. During the wide fluctuations of the morning the widest scenes were enacted, and it is estimated that in the first hour certificates representing over a million barrels of oil changed hands. For the day the sales aggregated five million barrels.

The police harred the passage of 500 men who were marching to the Eliseo, the residence of President Grery. The affair was a fiasco After the crowd had dispersed, a mob of one thousand returned; broke the windows, and overturned the carriages. The report that Louise Micheltistreeted is denied.

The municipal cavalry finally dispersed the crowds. An attempt was made to form a barrientic with paving stones; but was provented. Felix Pyatr was size on the ricters. Paul Mineke brandished a revolver.

Illinois Legislature.

SPRINGFIELD, March 10 .- Bills were introduced in the senate to amend the law in eference to the lensing of convict labor, by abolishing the same and providing that the state shall alone uso it, and in a way to least compete with the laboring classes and to amend the school law by providing for qualification of county superintendents. The bill requires that they must be practical teachers and hold state certificates. The appropriation bill was ordered to a third reading. A communication was received from the governor announcing that he had appointed Wm. Reddick, trustee of the Kankakee insano asylum, D. E. Beatty trustee of the contral insano, and E. D. Blinn trustee of the feeble minded institute at Lincoln. In the house the senate hill appropriating $5,000 for the relief of the inhabitants of Resideré, Hardin county, was passed. Gougar vs. Mandler. LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 10 .-- Yesterday was devoted almost entirely to cross-examining Mrs. Gongar, the plaintiff in the great damage suit. Something less than 10,-000 questions were asked her, but the answers all came promptly, and nothing new was developed that had not previously been sworn to. W. S. Wallace was nover at his house while Mrs. Gongar was there. It is probable Mrs. Gongar was there, it is probable Mrs. Gongar will go on the stand again to-day, as up to the time the cross examination closed she had not been quostioned at all concerning the alleged transactions of Nov. 19 last. The plaintiff-will-not get through with the evidence this wock. That Office Boy.

He takes about as much interest in the

He is frowned upon, reproved, sat down upon and snubbed by everybody. There is no one left for the office boy to snub. He is the lowest in the class. He has no one to kick. He brings with him a noon lunch and eats it at ten o'clock. He retires into a corner and eats between whiles. He may at times be heard munching and munching. Which makes the nervous clerk more nervous, who bids the office, boy "stop that munching." Which the office boy does 'not always stop. But goes into another corner and resumes munching, and renders himself thereby obnoxious to some other nervous official. The office boy has a dull jack-knife, with which he whittles, sometimes stages of incompletion. He has a tendency to leave half consumed bread, but-ter and meat lunches in odd and unoc-cupied drawers. Which, when by the onraged owner opened weeks afterwards, emit rank and musty smells. By that time the guilty office boy has gone. His place is filled by some other miserable office boy. There is of them a constant succession. Their identity and individuality are of no earthly importance. It is merely a small and uneasy boy, who munches and wears out the seat of his pantaloons as ho twists himself about in his chair, and is sworn at and grumbled by everybody.

Between his tasks he becomes absorbed in a string. Or plays with the office cat. Or draws rude resemblances to human forms and faces with the stump of a pen-

If there be two office boys it is next to impossible to keep them apart. They will gravitate towards each other like magnets and chatter in the piping treble of office-boy era. When howled at by the nervous person present, the piping subsides into a confounded whispering. This intensifies the nervous clerk's nervousness, who arises straightway, knocks together the heads of the two office boys, who thereat separate and silently shed tears, punctuating the sheddings at in-tervals of thirty seconds with snillings and repressed snivellings, which again attacks the nerves of the nervous functionary present.

If the two office boys can manage- to get just outside the office door or on the other side of the board partition, they quickly make up for lost time and colloquine pipingly and possibly scuffle. Whereat there is more howling and another twisting of ears or knocking of office boys heads together, with the attendant coursing of silent tears down dirty faces, all being punctuated with the usual sniffs and snivels of the office

Set these two office boys to the per-formance of any one task, and they will together require double the time of any single office boy. As a rule, the more you have of them the less there is done. Three office boys in one office will eventually drive somebody into insanity. Life is a tiresome, dreary thing to that office boy. Men about him who use him are interested and absorbed in their him are interested and absorbed in their business. He is not. He has not yet arrived at the business stage of being. He is a boy, or rather wants to be a boy, and can't. He longs for marbles, tops, kites. traps, skates, dogs, guns, rabbits and Guinea pigs. He longs for a saw, hammer and nails wherewith he may set to and destroy his father's barn. He is being cheated out of his howhood in that being cheated out of his boyhood in that office. He is the merest unconsidered adjunct of the great business machine-a peg, a nail, a screw therein, to be used, worn and fagged out in the process of making somebody's fortune.

Is it any wonder that the dime novel has such a fascination for the office boy? That it is his constant pocket companion? That he pores over it when not in scrvice? That he revels in prairies, buffaloes, bears and Indian fights? Where otherwise is his recreation?"

O man absorbed in business, turn aside for a moment, contemplate your office boy, put yourself in his place, and give him a moment's consideration. Think of the blood of youth demanding action now stagnating in your close, heated, stuffy office. You can go in and out at pleasure. But your office boy must remain to guard your desk and papers; to say that you are engaged when for the unwelcome person who calls it is expedient that you are engaged; to say that you are out and that none can tell when you will return when for that certain unwelcome caller it is expedient that you are out, and that none shall know precisely the time of your return. True, you are bringing him up in the way he should go, from a business and com-mercial standpoint of view.

Yet for him it is now a dreary road. He is as happy as the Italian organ-grinder's monkey, who, inwardly protesting, performs his tricks, wishing all the while he was climbing the trees of his native tropics.—N. Y. Graphic.

Twice Butchered. On her last voyage from China hither the steamship City of Tokio brought among her passengers a man who carries with him evidences of an ordeal, to have passed through which and survive, seems but little short of a miracle, unless to be spitted on a boarding pike, and afterward disemboweled, is to be considered a thing not particularly hazardous to one's life. Francis Oliver, the person referred to, was born in Detroit, Mich., on the 8th of November, 1839. He commenced life as a sailor boy on the lakes, and in 1855 went to sea before the mast. In 1860 he sailed for London in the British ship Lauderdale for Hong Kong. At the latter port he left the Lauderdale and engaged in the Chinese coast trade, first as master of a small vessel, and afterward as master and owner of a trading schooner or lorcha. His trade was mostly between Hong Kong and Shanghai. He was very successful, and as the custom-house officers at these ports were only human, his profits were large. Capt. Oliver multiplied his vessels until at one time he owned four-teen, all coasters. The Chinese seas at that time swarmed with pirates, and it was necessary to be well armed for protection against these marauders of the high seas. Scarcely a voyage was accomplished without encountering one or more of them, until, as Capt. Oliver said to a Cull reporter yesterday, it got to be a sort of pastime with him. Said the Captain: "I was so well armed that I knew the pirates could stand no show with me, and whenever I saw a piratical junk I always went for it, and made clean work. I never left any alive, nor a junk float that I attacked. In the latter part of November, 1863, I sailed in my lorcha Rose from Shaughai in ballast, giving out that I was going to Kui Kiang, but when I got away from port I directed my ments always carried by these predatory villains for throwing burning stink-pots down on the decks of their enemies. The junk was four times as large as the Rose, work he is hired to do as would a young bear similarly circumstanced, and little is the wonder. He is simply employed as a human machine to run, fetch, carry, and hold things. The office is to him a on board, besides rifles, boarding-pikes and cutlasses sufficient for all purposes. my lorcha, and swarmed with the pirates. The Rose was headed right for also two quartermasters and a crew of fifteen Chinamen. The Chinamen liked me, and would have given their lives for me. As we drew near to the junk, I observed one of her men go up to the stink-pots at the mainmast head, and an-other to those on the foremast. I gave my mate one rifle and I took another. I said to the mate: 'Now, as soon as you see that fellow light a fuse fire, and don't miss him.' The mate, for some reason, manifested a disposition not to fight. I told him he could take his choice, either do as I told him, or go below in irons. He promised to obey orders. I told him to take the man on the mainmast, and if a stick, sometimes the furniture. His he missed him that I would blow his initials are carved about in various brains out. A vague suspicion had crept into my mind that he meant treachery but he kept his promise. I looked out for the man on the pirate's foremast. The space between the two vessels gradually lessened. At length I observed what I had been watching for—a little flash of fire, and a thin line of blue smoke curl away from the fellow at the masthead. I knew that in another moment a burning stink-pot would be on our deck unless we made sure aim and quick work. I gave the word, and we fired almost simultaneously. Both of the pirates fell to the deck of the junk, and the stink-pots they had ignited with them. The Rose was to the windward of the junk. I put my helm hard down. got close alongside, and fastened to her with grappling-hooks.

The pirates made a rush to board my lorcha. They were armed with spears or pikes. About fifty of them crowded upon ine and a spear was driven through my body, entering my left side below the ribs and coming out on the right side. It was drawn out, but I immediately became insensible. My men thought I was dead, but kept up the fight, for it was a matter of life and death with them also. The junk had caught fire from the burning stink-pots that fell from aloft. The Rose cast off the grappling hooks and got away from the junk, standing off a suffcient distance to see her burn and go down. Every one of the infernal crew was killed or drowned. When it was found that I still had life in me I was carried below. The mate took the Rose back to Shanghai, where I received medical aid. I was unconscious or delirious for three months, but at last sufficiently recovered to be about, though I could never do any active business. I suffered intensely at times, and the functions of nature were suspended for weeks at a My sufferings increased, and I time. begged the physicians to cut me open and see if they could not get at and remedy the difficulty. They told me that it wolud be almost sure death. I replied that I didn't care. I would rather die than suffer such torture, and after three years' pleading with them, they said I would die anyhow, so there would be really no risk in performing the opera-tion. They did it, cutting open my ab-domen and side almost half way around my body. They took out my intestines and washed them, and also washed the interior walls of my body. They saw my kidneys; in fact, I was completely dis-emboweled. After washing, the intes-tines were replaced and the incision wassewed up, leaving only an aperture in my left side, just where the pirate's spear entered. The doctors looked upon my recovery as marvelous. It has been now eleven years since the operation was performed."

To all external appearances he is perfectly healthy. He is a compactly built man, five feet eight and three-quarters inches in height. At the time of the en-counter in which he was speared he weighed 174 pounds; but now he weighe between 135 and 140 pounds.—San Fran-

The Winter Sleep of the Hedgehog.

The witch in "Macbeth, according to whom

"Thrice and once the bedgepig whin'd," must have heard the little animals when awakened from their sleep; this, some writers say, being the only time in which. the peculiar utterance is heard, while others who have disturbed the sleeper aver that its only response is a sigh; the hedgehog immediately relapsing into somnolency that is, perhaps, the most perfect hibernation known among quad1 rupeds; many of its congeners laying up-winter stores, while the hedgehog de-pends entirely upon the suspension of its faculties. This has been doubted, as apples have been found in the winter burrow, but their presence there may be explained in another way. In the fall the spinous little creatures, warned by the cooler nights, bethink themselves the winter and prepare their habitation for it. This may be under the roots of some aged tree, or in a hollow of the same, or even in the burrow of some luckless rabbit, into which bits of hay grass or soft leaves are carried. Perhaps upon the last tour the hedgehog essays a stone wall; to ascend is a comparatively easy matter, but the descent would seem a more difficult feat. The little creature however, with a quick movement leap into the air, coiling into a ball as it falls striking upon the mass of sharp spines in perfect safety, uncoiling and passing on, bearing upon its spines the fallen pippin that has chanced to become impaled in the fail. Observers who have witnessed this occurrence assume that the animal impales them purposely as an economic measure; we are, however, inclined to the accidental phase of the incident. Be t as it may, the hedgehog is often seen in the autumn bearing away, perched upon its back, the fallen fruit. Once within its nest, the animal does not awake until spring, unless extreme cold arouses them. If decapidated in this condition, before the animal can awake the heart beats on for some time as if its work had not been interfered with. Remove now the brain, even take out the spinal column and sever the various muscles, and yet the heart beats on for muscles, and yet the nearly a day will several hours, while for nearly a day will it show signf of vitality. How little the oreature depends upon respiration can be shown by surrounding it with gas, carbonic acid, etc., and for a long time their effects upon the animal, that in its normal state would be instantaneous, are not perceptible.—N. Y. Evening Post.

-On Thursday last, Mr. John L. Quinn, of the town of Rock, returned home from an extended tour in Ireland. Mr. Quinu spent much of his time in Dublin during the past few months, and was closely "shadowed" by the government police, who imagined that he was a spy, or an agent of some society formed for the purpose of destroying the power of the British in the Green Isle. Notwithstanding Mr. Quinn was closely watched by the officials, he enjoyed a pleasant tour through his native land, and returns home in robust health, and is as social and jolly as ever. It is slyly intimated that he brought back with him a "betterhalf." He is heartily welcomed home by his neighbors in the town of Rock, and friends in this city.

-Mr. Gordon Pellett, of Binghampton, New York, writes a friendly letter to the Loudon Brothers, under date of March 18 1883, (post-marked 3rd) inclosing an invitation card of the third annual festival of Water Witch engine company, which was held in Lappin's hall March 18, 1858, at which Messrs. Isaac Howland, Henry, Hemming, George O. Wright, Wm. A. Eager and James Hemming were the managers. Although the card is a quarter of a century old, it has been carefully preserved and is a fine specimen of printing for that day. In Mr. Pellett's letter, he wishes to be remembered to "Dr. Robinson, Charlie Church, Sam. Clemens, and all the rest of the boys," who were his chams twenty-five years ago in Janesville. He was a member of the Janesville cornet band, while living here, and will bers of that organization.

Muldoon's Picule.

There was a large audience at Myers' opera house last night to greet Newell & Scott's Muldoon pienic party. This piece of comedy always draws well, as there is something in it that pleases the masses and makes them roar with laughter when they are indifferent as to the more intellectual dramas and comedies. The performance began last night with series of specialties, among them were the plantation songs and dances by Bryant and Williams. A number of fine exhibitions of remarkable facial expressions were given by Harry Eades. In these exhibitions he showed wonderful skill much to the intense delight of the audience. Miss Mollie Leroy appeared in a number of serio-comic songs; and Martin, a vocalist considerable ability created loud applause which was frequently repeated, by his original creations. He made many local and exceedingly humorous hits, making his rhymes "on the spot." These were innocent jokes, and took immensely with the audience. One of the best of the numerous specialties of the evening, was that of Little Della Fox. She is certainly a child prodigy. Not in her teens yet, she sings remarkably well, dances finely, and won quite an ovation.

Of course, the performance, around is enough laughter brought out of this whole month. The principal characters cahy, taken by Walter Leroy and Dan ments, and when the two meet in the house of Muldoon, the fun begins, and does not end until the picnic is over, and each take a hand in the three-handed reel, and the curtain drops. Their jokes, succession, and hardly afford an intermission in which laughter can cease for a moment. The frequent bickerings of Jackson street on Pleasant, the band boys these sworn friends, their renewed friendship, their unstinted hospitalraise a laugh that shakes the entire audience. The many comical situations including that of Muldoon and Mulcahy trying the roller skates, and the ride to the picnic grounds in a cart drawn by a donkey, offered ample fun for those who want to laugh to their hearts' content.

The performance will be repeated this evening and of course there will be a crowded house.

The Weather.

reported by prentice & evenson, druggists. At seven o'clock this morning the thermemeter registered 25 degrees above zero and at one o'clock p. m. at 28 degrees above. Cloudy, with a light flurry of snow-strong wind from the north. For the same hours one year ago the register was 28 and 36 degrees above zero.

A Baptist Minister's Experience.

"I am a Baptist minister, and before I thought of being a clergyman I gradua-ted in medicine, but left a lucrative pracme. I was also troubled with hourseness, and Thomas' Electric Oil always relieved me. My wife and child had diphtheria, and Thomas' Electric Oil cured them, and if taken in time it will cure seven times out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinent cold, or cough, and if any one will take a small teaspoon and half fill it with Oil, and then place the end of the spoon in one nestril and draw the Oil out of the spoon into the head, by smiffing as hard as they can, until the Oil falls over into the throat, and practice it twice a week, I don't care how offensive their head may be, it will clean it out and cure their catarrh. For deafness and earache, it has done wonders to my certain knowledge. It is the only medicine dubbed patent medicine that I have ever felt like recommending, and I am very anxious to see it in every place, for I tell you that I would not be without it in my house for any consideration. I am now suffering with a pain like rheumatism in my right limb, and nothing relieves me like Thomas' Electri Oil." Dr. E. F. Crane, Corry, Pa. Sold by Palmer & Stevens and Sherer & Co

The Engilsh Sparrows.

Sono years ago, Mr. Caniel Strunk, of his city, on returning from a trip to Europe, brought home with him a few English sparrows, and gave the birds their liberty here Since that time these birds, (we believe only three survived the voyage) have rapidly multiplied, until now there are thousands in number. They have also multiplied to a great extent into the surrounding country. Many citizens and farmers, who claim that they have watched the habits of the sparrows, claim that they are and have been destroying all the small native song birds that they can reachand insist that the sparrows ought to be exterminated as a nuisance. Of late we have made many inquiries relating to the objections raised against these little birds. In Madison the sparrows seem to be as plentiful as in this locality; and we find no better answer to the many objections, or anything which throws more light upon the question, than the following, from the Madison Journal: "A correspondent asks the State Journal: 1st, How can the English sparrows. now so plentiful in this city and vicinity, and rapidly spreading from here throughout the country, be exterminated?—he, last year, having tried many devices which seemingly had no effect; 2d, are these innocent-appearing sparrows, after life." Conversion. all, so destructive to other birds, as al-

Prof. Elliott Coues, the distinguished naturalist, who has long been an uncompromising opponent of the English sparrow, has re ently expressed the opinion that no steps now likely to be taken can end in the extermination of these birds. Whatever slaughter may result from allowing persons to destroy them at will cannot have any marked effect, as they have multiplied to such an extent, and their natural increase is so rapid, that the loss in their number caused by any other means than a concerted and persistent onslaught upon them would. scarcely be perceptible. Prof. Coues says that some of his views concerning these birds have been modified since they were first introduced, and he expresses the opinion that the charge made against them of driving other birds away is not so well grounded as it was supposed to be. So far as the other birds may be banished by their presence, the resultcomes from the fact that they consume the food which the other birds need for support, rather than from any pugnacity on their part. Their prependerance in number over other birds in any given locality is simply an example of the survivat of those birds best adapted to thrive under existing conditions."

At May Save Your Life. The manufacturers have yet to hear of a single case of Dyspepsia or Biliousness when Zopesa was used as directed, in which it was not more than satisfactory. Many write that it is a wonderful remedy. We can show where as high as 40 pounds were gained by its use in breaking up chronic Bilhousness and Dyspersia.
